WINEMAKER NOTES

Bugle Call is a robust blend of Malbec, Petit Verdot and Grenache. Malbec and Petit Verdot, both Bordeaux varietals, complement each other when blended together. Malbec adds richness and black fruit flavors, while Petit Verdot adds tannin, a beautiful, dense red color and a trace of floral notes. Grenache, a variety renowned in France's Rhône Valley, adds bright forward fruit and an interesting spicy note to the blend, which is unlike the spice notes found in Bordeaux varietals.

It is the combination of these varietals and their complex mix of flavors that make this a unique, accessible and delicious wine.

TASTING NOTES

A juicy dark berry essence sprinkled with traces of black pepper and toasty oak fills the nose. The round entry quickly reveals a delicious fusion of brambly blackberry, raspberry, red currant and dried strawberry mingled with hints of white floral, pepper and baking spices with just a touch of blood orange. Seamlessly integrated oak and supple tannins gently caress the luscious flavors, adding structure, depth and balance to this lovely blend.

It's easy to find the perfect pairing for this delicious wine. Try herb-crusted pork tenderloin with red currant sauce, or meatloaf with blue cheese, mushrooms and spinach served with garlic-infused mashed potatoes.
